

The Catechism of the Crisis in the Church VII -The New Mass

- Might it be said that our Lord is present in the holy Eucharist as victim?

Yes, it is as victim that our Lord Jesus Christ is present in the holy Eucharist.

- How can our Lord, whose body is henceforth glorious, be present in a state of victimhood?

Our Lord is in a state of victimhood in the holy Eucharist because in it His Body and Blood are sacramentally separated in order to represent the physical separation effected by the Passion.

- Yet isn't our Lord entirely present—Body, Blood, Soul, and Divinity—under the appearances of both the bread and the wine?

Since our Lord Jesus Christ is now living (risen and glorious), the presence of His Body or His Blood necessitates the presence of His whole person (body, blood, soul, and divinity); His Body and Blood can no longer be separated physically. And yet, per se, merely by the power of the consecratory words, it is the Body that is made present under the appearances of the bread, and the Blood under the appearances of wine; the Body and Blood of Christ are in a certain way separated by the sacrament (because of the double consecration).

- Does this sacramental separation of the Body and Blood of our Lord Jesus Christ constitute immolation?

The sacramental separation of the Body and Blood of our Lord constitutes an immolation in that it represents the physical separation that took place during His Passion, and, by the Savior's will, applies its fruits.

- In the Mass, then, there really is an immolation?

In the Mass there is an immolation, a sacramental immolation. The Council of Trent affirms that in the Mass, Christ "is contained and immolated in an unbloody manner.
