Fourth Sunday after Easter

Instructions on Some Words from Today's Epistle

"Let every man be swift to hear, but slow to speak, and slow to anger, for the anger of man work if not the justice of God:"

What is it that we must be swift to hear? The word of truth, the word of God; we must hear it swiftly, that is, willingly and fervently. How anxious are people for the daily papers, to hear what happens in the world, which properly does not concern us, or has influence only upon our earthly life. Why should we not hear the word of God with zeal and joy, which contains lessons and truths, upon the faithful acceptance and following of which, depends our eternal salvation? One is anxious to hear what he loves; it is therefore a good sign to hear the word of God, a sign that he loves the word of God and is solicitous for his salvation. What one does not love, he does not like to hear, it is therefore a bad sign when he hears the word of God either not at all, or without interest, or with disgust, a sign that he cares nothing of God and neglects the business of his salvation. How is it with you? Do you love to hear the word of God, or not? Examine yourselves and see whether you are of God or not.

We must be slow to speak: Before we speak, we must reflect calmly and conscientiously whether what we intend to say is right and good before God; whether it is not suggested by vanity, by envy, or enmity, by falsity, or other censurable passions; whether it is necessary, useful, and prudent. Oh! how many sins, how many scandals and evils could be avoided if all would be slow to speak! In order not to sin in speaking, it is necessary, above all things, to cleanse our heart from all inordinate inclinations and passions, for *'out of the abundance of the heart, the mouth speaketh.'*To keep silence, and speak little, were characteristic traits of all the saints. Let us not forget that we must give an account of every idle word.

We must be slow to anger. What does this mean? We must first reflect, whether we have a just cause for anger; for to be angry without such a cause, is always sinful; secondly, whether, and in how far, the thing is worthy of anger; thirdly, whether he that has offended or injured us, has done or omitted something that displeases us, through inadvertency, surprise, hastiness, or awkwardness; or with deliberation, ill-will, or malice. To be 'slow to anger' means also that we should not speak or act upon the first impulse, but recollect ourselves and then speak or act what the case in question may suggest as necessary or useful. Therefore, an old philosopher gives the rule: "do and say nothing when angry until you have recited the whole alphabet."

St James assigns as a reason why we must be slow to anger, 'because the anger of man worketh not the justice of God.' How much men do in the passion of anger, that they have afterwards reason to regret bitterly! Example: Alexander the Great, who in a passion of anger, stabbed his best friend, Klitus, whereupon he almost became insane. Louis the Severe, who in a fit of anger became the murderer of his innocent wife and of several other persons, an act, over which he grieved so much, that the hair of his head turned grey in one night. O, how many sins could be avoided if people would always be slow to anger! Make good resolutions!
